

2017 Dickson Awardee: Ann Craig

As a faculty member, Ann Craig studied and taught Latin American politics and served as founding Provost of Eleanor Roosevelt College. After retiring, Ann has remained an active campus leader with her wide-ranging and collaborative contributions. She returned to service after retirement as Acting Provost and Interim Provost of Revelle College. She has also been President and Vice President of the Emeriti Association.

Ann has served as chair of the Academic Senate Committee on International Education, a member of the UCSD New Colleges Pre-Planning Committee and the system-wide Committee on International Education, and a consultant to the Associate Vice Chancellor and Dean of ungraduated Education.

She has also remained actively involved in teaching. For two years she offered a one-unit senior seminar called Study Abroad Brought Home, designed to help students returning from education abroad to translate their experience into coursework, research, internships, employment and graduate study. She has taught two freshmen seminars, one on Eleanor Roosevelt's advocacy for economic and social justice, civil rights, and human rights, and a freshman honors course for Revelle students. Additionally, she has been a mentor in the Chancellor's Scholar Mentor program since 2010, and a volunteer instructor twice each week in an after-school program for Spanish-speaking preschoolers.
