WHO ARE CHANCELLOR'S SCHOLARS?

These scholars are some of the best and the brightest students who receive admittance to UC San Diego, and they are coming in with top GPA's and test scores.

They all have in common:

- Demonstrated academic excellence
- Leadership potential

However, these top students have had to work hard to achieve their place here, faced with difficult life changes. Chancellor's Scholars have one or more of the following attributes:

- First generation college attendee
- Hail from a 4th or 5th Quintile school
- Financial need
- California resident

A MESSAGE FROM THE EMERITI MENTOR PROGRAM CHAIR

The Chancellor's Scholarship Program is now in its 16th year and welcomes 40 mostly first-generation students to the program annually. The program is a mentorship and leadership development program emphasizing the following:

- Identifying strategies for career path development;
- Critical analysis of communication effectiveness;
- Creating and delivering effective oral presentations;
- Identifying campus resources and their opportunities for serving UC San Diego students.

Mentoring is a critical component of the program and is done through the Emeriti Mentor Program which engages emeriti faculty and staff in a one-on-one experience for the scholars. Scholars also experience peer mentoring with upper-division Chancellor's Scholars and ongoing leadership, communication and professional skill development. I encourage all mentors to talk to their emeriti colleagues about joining the mentor program.

I have been a mentor for 7 years and believe I have gotten more out of the program than I contributed. Getting to know mentees has been a great experience and I have maintained a relationship with most of my mentees throughout their years at UC San Diego. My first mentee now works on the campus and I have had the pleasure of following her early career development.

As the new Chair of the Emeriti Mentor Program, I hope to build on the success of my predecessors. Now that we are beyond the intensity of the COVID years, I would like to encourage more personal interaction among mentees and mentors. I also hope to identify additional financial support for the program and engage additional mentors from the emeriti faculty and staff.

I encourage mentees to enjoy their time at UC San Diego. Being an undergraduate student is a once in a lifetime experience. Please do well academically, and be sure to meet the requirements of your scholarship but also be sociable. Join a club, go to a sporting event, take advantage of the many non-academic activities available on the campus and in the community.

Interested in joining the Emeriti Mentor Program or know someone who would be a great fit?

The CSP/EMP mentoring relationship provides the intellectual, social and cultural preparation necessary for a successful college experience. It provides practical insight, know-how and advice gleaned from real-world experience, and can serve as a bridge to future academic, personal and professional growth. Mentoring helps scholars achieve maximal academic, personal and professional growth.

If you would like to know more about the program, please contact us at EmeritiMentor@ucsd.edu. Check out our website to get to know more about our program: UCSD Emeriti Mentor Program - <https://emeriti.ucsd.edu/>

OPENING EVENTS: 2024 ANNUAL OPENING RECEPTION & WELCOME BBQ

The Chancellor's Scholars Program has had an active and eventful fall season. In late September, the program kicked off the academic year by welcoming a new cohort of scholars during the Opening Reception held at the UC San Diego Faculty Club. This gathering provided a wonderful opportunity for both returning and incoming scholars to connect with their emeriti mentors and fellow peers in a warm and celebratory setting.

The welcome festivities continued with the annual Chancellor's Scholars Welcome BBQ on October 5th at Mathews Quad. This more casual event allowed scholars and their mentors to mingle over delicious food and engage in interactive games, fostering a relaxed atmosphere for building connections.

Looking ahead, the academic year promises ongoing opportunities for the scholars to grow, learn, and make meaningful connections. The program will once again host its popular Networking Nights, which scholars consistently rate as valuable experiences. Additionally, the highly anticipated Etiquette Dinner, a long-standing favorite among both scholars and mentors, will return.

To further enhance scholars' academic and professional development, the program will host a series of targeted workshops. These sessions will cover a range of topics, including effective communication, crafting compelling elevator pitches, honing communication skills, mastering networking strategies, and career readiness.

Beyond the classroom-focused programming, scholars will also have meaningful chances to engage in community building among the scholars and community service initiatives. These opportunities reinforce the Chancellor's Scholars Program's strong commitment to social responsibility and making a positive impact.

Throughout the year, we remain dedicated to nurturing our scholars' academic excellence and personal growth, providing them with the resources and opportunities they need to thrive and create positive change in their communities.

“It was very useful information for us to have. We can utilize what they spoke about, or spread it to others to help those in need.”
-2024 Cohort

This fall, the Chancellor’s Scholar Program has provided the first and second year cohorts with valuable opportunities to learn and grow. Through a combination of structured workshops and informal gatherings, scholars have been able to deeply engage with campus resources, build community, develop essential skills, and engage in collaborative learning experiences facilitated by staff, faculty, and peers.

In particular, scholars have:

- Learned about key campus resources to support their academic and personal development.
- Participated in activities that fostered a sense of community among the cohort.
- Developed essential skills like time management, stress management and well-being, and effective communication.
- Engaged in peer and faculty mentoring to enhance their learning experiences.
- Received advice on planning for future careers and navigating post-graduation steps.

Overall, these multifaceted experiences have aimed to provide scholars with the tools and support needed to succeed both in their studies and in their broader personal growth.

ISAIAH FRAUSTO SHARES HIS SUMMER STUDY ABROAD EXPERIENCE IN ITALY

WHY DID YOU WANT TO STUDY ABROAD?

I wanted to study abroad to maximize my college experience and take full advantage of the opportunities that the university has presented me with and has offered, especially as a Chancellor's Scholar. Additionally, it allowed me to partake in an experience I may never have the opportunity to do again. This is especially true when I have talked to mentors and people who have gone and gone through college/university and deeply regret their decision not to study abroad, let alone try to do so.

WHAT WAS THE BIGGEST THING YOU LEARNED ABOUT STUDYING ABROAD?

The process of applying for study abroad was a little bit different for me as I did not ask or receive any support throughout the process, which was of my own accord, but I do not recommend doing so. First I read the various study abroad programs UCSD offers and selected the best one that suited my needs and desires. I chose the UCEAP program as I would be a part of a program of only UC students from various UCs and earn UC credit for all my courses, which can easily be transferred to my transcript. Next, I searched for a location in which I wanted to study, which for me was Italy. Upon filtering my choices to this point there were around 5 options, 3 of which were for the summer term, which is the term I wanted to partake in. At this point, my options were all up to me and I decided to study abroad in Florence Italy for Summer 24. I made this decision and began the application process just 6 months before the program was set to start. By this time I was able to work and save up finances, attain a passport, purchase flights, schedule my health clearance, and get my desired courses approved. Which were all necessary and required for completion to partake in the summer. It is not as complex of a process as it may seem or people make it out to be, just be sure to be aware of all deadlines, read instructions and notes in detail, and truly do everything in your power to make sure your experience happens.

ON AN AVERAGE DAY LIVING IN FLORENCE ITALY

Living with my Italian homestay family, my days began at 7 AM with shared breakfast of toast, jam, and coffee. After getting ready in my Pinterest-worthy room, I'd catch the program-provided bus to the study center. Mornings started with Italian Food Culture class, followed by incredible €7 deli sandwiches and mandatory gelato for lunch. Afternoons mixed language classes with exploring Florence's shops and views. Evenings at home meant massive home-cooked Italian dinners at 8 PM with my host family. Dinner always included laughing and talking for hours with my homestay family. Some nights ended anywhere between 11 PM and 4 AM, either with gelato or dancing at discos. Weekends were spent traveling to new cities and countries, creating some of the best memories, meeting the best people, indulging in amazing food, and seeing things of beauty I thought I'd never see with my own eyes.

WHAT WAS THE BIGGEST CHALLENGE?

For me, the biggest challenge was not being able to share this experience with those I love and adore, like family and my closest friends. I truly wish they were able to see, eat, and experience the very things I did. I am grateful and filled with gratitude for my experiences, but I do truly wish they could have been there with me.

WHAT IS YOUR ADVICE FOR ANYONE THINKING ABOUT STUDYING ABROAD?

Put pressure on yourself to do it, make it happen, and do not push it off. You will not regret it!

Maria Habashy - Integrating Practical Experiences Beyond the Classroom

Returning to UC San Diego this fall has given me time to reflect on the invaluable opportunities I've embraced so far. Each experience, from architectural design to community service, has not only enriched my studies but also clarified my path forward.

In the ARCH Club, I've worked on architectural projects alongside students who share a passion for design. This hands-on involvement has helped bring my academic focus to life, making speculative design and urban studies feel even more purposeful. Meanwhile, participating in the USP and RED programs has been instrumental in broadening my knowledge and skill set within my major. These programs have connected me with mentors and peers who are as driven and curious as I am, pushing me to think critically and creatively.

Outside of my academic pursuits, the Coptic Club has offered me a community centered on my Orthodox Christian faith. It's a space where we connect over shared beliefs, providing a supportive environment amidst the hustle of campus life.

The Scholars Society has introduced me to other scholarship recipients on campus, surrounding me with individuals who are motivated by their own unique backgrounds and ambitions—a source of constant inspiration.

One of my most rewarding experiences has been working as a studio coordinator at the Craft Center. My role spans both front-of-house and back-of-house responsibilities, from welcoming members and managing the craft lounge to working directly with clay, kiln loading, and glaze application. Being part of a community where creativity and learning intersect has been deeply fulfilling, teaching me patience, leadership, and technical skills that I know will serve me well in the future.

I've also had the privilege of volunteering at Humble Design, an organization that supports families transitioning out of homelessness. This opportunity came through my connection with my Emeriti Mentor, Dr. Mary Walshok, and has been incredibly meaningful. Transforming spaces to create comfortable, dignified homes has shown me the true power of thoughtful design—an impact that goes far beyond aesthetics.

All these experiences have been stepping stones toward my dream of a career in interior design and architecture. They've reinforced my belief that “hard work beats talent when talent fails to work hard,” a mantra that motivates me to keep showing up and putting in the effort, even when balancing commitments gets challenging.

Indeed, managing my extracurriculars, academic responsibilities, and personal life has required resilience and strong time-management skills. Yet, these challenges have only strengthened my dedication, equipping me with essential skills that I carry into every project and interaction.

I can't overstate the value of gaining practical experience early in my college journey. These experiences have not only given me insight into my chosen field but also a foundation of real-world skills and meaningful connections. For anyone considering similar opportunities, my advice would be to dive in wholeheartedly; the lessons learned will stay with you and pave the way for whatever comes next!

PEER MENTOR SPOTLIGHTS

Emily Park, 2023 Cohort

WHY DID YOU CHOOSE TO BECOME A PEER MENTOR?

I chose to be part of the CSA Peer Mentor Program because I wanted to have the opportunity to support the first-year scholars in their academic and professional endeavors. My goal is to provide mentees with motivation and guidance in order to foster a supportive environment while also enhancing my own leadership skills. I'm passionate about making a positive, lasting impact on my peers' journeys, and empowering them to excel by sharing my experiences and knowledge with them.

WHAT WERE THE HIGHLIGHTS OR FAVORITE MEMORY OF BEING A PEER MENTOR?

One highlight of being a peer mentor this quarter was hosting the speed friending event and interacting with the first-year scholars. It was enjoyable to get to know them better and to learn about their diverse interests and goals. Hearing about their aspirations definitely reinforced my interest in helping them navigate their transition into UCSD.

WHY SHOULD OTHERS BECOME A PEER MENTOR? ANY ADVICE FOR OTHER PEER MENTORS?

Other scholars should consider becoming a peer mentor because the role assists students with developing their abilities in effective communication and leadership. Peer mentors have the opportunity to serve as a role model for first-year scholars through sharing resources and honest guidance. In return, they will experience the rewarding feeling of helping their peers succeed, and the skills they gain from mentoring provides them with qualifications that can be valuable to future opportunities.

HOW HAS YOUR EXPERIENCE WITH BEING A PEER MENTOR DEVELOPED YOUR SKILLS?

Being a Peer Mentor has developed my communication and leadership skills in several ways. I've been able to enhance my skills in communicating constructively, and I've learned to respond thoughtfully to the different perspectives and goals of mentees. Additionally, through facilitating connections with mentees, I've gained insights into providing effective guidance and being resourceful.

WHY DID YOU CHOOSE TO BECOME A PEER MENTOR?

I chose to be part of the CSA Peer Mentor Program because I wanted to have the opportunity to support the first-year scholars in their academic and professional endeavors. My goal is to provide mentees with motivation and guidance in order to foster a supportive environment while also enhancing my own leadership skills. I'm passionate about making a positive, lasting impact on my peers' journeys, and empowering them to excel by sharing my experiences and knowledge with them.

WHAT WERE THE HIGHLIGHTS OR FAVORITE MEMORY OF BEING A PEER MENTOR?

My favorite memory with her was when we would meet over food and talk for hours about my experience with college and her concerns with her academic and career plans.

WHY SHOULD OTHERS BECOME A PEER MENTOR? ANY ADVICE FOR OTHER PEER MENTORS?

I would recommend being a peer mentor because it gives the freshmen someone to rely on, especially in a campus where you can feel easily lost. You also gain the chance of realizing how far you've come as a student and an individual through the advice you give based on your experiences.

HOW HAS YOUR EXPERIENCE WITH BEING A PEER MENTOR DEVELOPED YOUR SKILLS?

With being a peer mentor, I've gotten better at talking with people, even those I've just met, on a personal level and creating a connection through our commonalities. As one of the CSA's Peer Mentor Co-Chairs, I've improved my initiative to take leadership and present any information I may have confidently, especially if it's on the spot.

CHANCELLOR'S SCHOLARS ALLIANCE

The Chancellor's Scholars Alliance (CSA), a student-run organization, demonstrated success in coordinating and facilitating a variety of engaging in-person events and activities throughout the academic year. Their efforts significantly contributed to building a strong sense of community among Chancellor's Scholars across all cohorts.

MESSAGE FROM THE CSA PRESIDENT

It was only 2 years ago when I was a freshman coming into this school sitting in the CSP Opening Reception, surrounded by scary students and adults, wondering what college would have in store for me, and nervous about meeting new people. On that day I decided to gather some courage and convince myself to introduce myself to some new people, talking to several others whom I would connect with further both in and out of CSP. Those connections still are with me today. One of those people who I talked with that day joined me in the study abroad program I participated in this past summer, another one of these people is my current roommate, and many of them are on the CSA board with me. CSP and CSA have provided me with connections and opportunities that I never would have initially thought possible for me when I first entered college, and for that I am thankful.

My biggest piece of advice for all the new scholars is to take advantage of the opportunities we have been given access to as Chancellor's Scholars whether it is networking, personal development, and more. CSP and CSA have given me the opportunities to develop my leadership skills via CSP workshops and the CSA board, helped pave the way for me to study abroad in Scotland this past summer, and given me a safe space to express myself and more. Beyond these programs, I encourage students to not be afraid to put themselves out there. Taking initiative is the best way to find communities and opportunities that fit your interests and values. While there might be lows in your experience, there will also be highs. Either way, every experience will be a learning opportunity. Be sure to embrace these lessons.

As the current CSA president, I hope that I can give back to this community just as it has provided for me. Through CSA, I hope to foster a community where the incoming cohort of Chancellor's scholars feels welcome and included. We have many fun and interesting CSA events planned throughout the year that I hope will catch the interest of some of you. As such, I personally invite any and all to come to our events and join our community to allow CSA to be a resource for you.

Impact on CSA Members

"I made some of my closest friends through CSA. I genuinely believe I got to this point hugely in part due to the support I received from the people in this org, and for that I'll be grateful for a long time." - Quyendi Nguyen

"CSA has given me opportunities that I would be too afraid to reach out for without this scholarship. I'd like to express my gratitude towards this program for providing me the inspiration and resources I need to succeed!" - Reynelle Aricheta

"CSA has been an amazing opportunity to grow and a way for me to make the Chancellor Scholars Program a more inter-connected community. It has helped develop my leadership and collaboration skills. Some of my favorite moments have been getting paired with my mentees and the opportunity to give them advice and support." - Carlynda Ng

MY JOURNEY WITH THE CHANCELLOR'S SCHOLARS AND EMERITI MENTOR PROGRAMS

I joined the Chancellor's Scholars Program as a first-year scholar. A wide-eyed, first-generation student, there was nobody in my immediate support network who could provide guidance on the world of higher academia. The weekly Chancellor's Scholars Program meetings were a blessing. I now had a space where I could ask questions free of judgment, amongst peers of similar backgrounds. I learned so much during my time in undergrad; from coursework, of course, but also from these CSP meetings, and the different meetings I had with my Emeriti Mentor Program mentors. Amongst the most valuable lessons were those involving the hidden curriculum at UCSD, which I would have struggled to learn without these additional resources.

When former RRC Director Suzan Cioffi offered the opportunity to join the CSP/EMP team as a part-time student staff member, I was overjoyed. I could give back to the group that ensured my time at UCSD was a fruitful one. Eventually, this part-time position turned into a full-time role as the CSP/EMP Program Coordinator. I was now able to interact with students who were in the same place I had once been. It was eye-opening to realize just how much thought and care went into planning and facilitating the events being offered to students. It was beautiful to see that program staff and mentors were fully invested in student success. Scholars, we are always rooting for you.

During my time as RRC Director, I continued to oversee the administration of the CSP/EMP. As I prepare to separate from this role at the end of the calendar year, I am pleased to know that our programs are in good hands. Emeriti Mentor Program Chair Wayne Kennedy, Program Coordinator Jen Homrich, and the entire Emeriti Mentor cohort and Emeriti Association leadership are as fully invested in student success as our predecessors.

If there is one piece of advice I can offer scholars as a CSP alumna, it is to remember to take time to reflect, and to always show gratitude to those around you. I would not be in the role I am in today were it not for my mentors, my supervisors, my peers. The connections you will make along your career journey are truly priceless.

It has been my absolute pleasure to serve as the Director of the Chancellor's Scholars and Emeriti Mentor Programs. Please do not hesitate to keep in touch.
